A novel vascular cyst of the liver in a patient with HIV infection: an incidental finding on CT. A 39-year-old man with a history of intravenous drug use was referred for evaluation of a liver mass. CT scans showed a liver mass with an intraluminal hypodense lesion, which appeared to be extrahepatic. Although the mass showed mild homogeneous enhancement, it did not show any moderate or marked washout of contrast material. On delayed CT scans, it showed progressive enhancement of the lesion. These findings were characteristic of a liver vascular cyst that had been missed on CT. This type of lesion should be considered as a different diagnostic possibility in patients with an intrahepatic vascular cyst, particularly in patients with a history of intravenous drug use.

Q: Which "real" tool is the best for Windows? I want to create one app for Windows which take input from user and display it on GUI. I am thinking to use C/C++/C# programming language. Can you please suggest me which tool (library) is the best for this job? A: I use Qt with C++ for making GUI's, it's got great support from Microsoft's team (which is a win).

Hospitalized children with asthma: maintaining nutrition. To determine the percentage of hospitalized children with asthma from two teaching hospitals who need to be readmitted within 90 days of discharge for uncontrolled asthma. Using the medical record numbers of 2,549 patients admitted to Children's Medical Center in Dallas and the Cooperative Children's Hospital in Cincinnati during an 18-month period, we selected all consecutive patients admitted from June 1990 to May 1991. The medical records of all patients with the diagnosis of asthma were reviewed and the patients with a recent history of asthma, asthma that had resolved, or asthma that was not compliant with steroids during an acute exacerbation were excluded. In all, 573 patients were included. The prevalence of asthma in children admitted to the two hospitals was the same, 15.0% (516 of 3,282). Of the remaining 257 patients who had a recent history of asthma, 167 (66%) were rehospitalized. Readmissions for asthma were unrelated to age, sex, race, number of previous hospital admissions, current level of forced expiratory volume in 1 second, diurnal variability, forced expiratory flow during 1 second and 24

[Cavity dispersion and scattering.] (a) Comparison of wavelength-averaged ( $\lambda = 532$  nm) scattering efficiency of water ( $\epsilon \sim \sigma \sim (560$  nm)) in nanocavities of different aspect ratios (defined as the ratio of lateral dimension over depth) plotted as a function of aspect ratio. The scattering efficiency in cavities with asymmetric cross-section are calculated with the numerical tool available from Markel group [21][22]. (b) Brillouin scattering ( $\lambda = 532$  nm) of water in vertical and asymmetric nanocavities plotted as a function of cavity height ( $h$ ).  $h$  corresponds to the position of the acoustic antinode in the cavity. (c) Band diagram illustrating the Brillouin and Rayleigh scattering mechanism. (d) Analysis of the dynamic dependence of Rayleigh and Brillouin scattering on the detuning ( $\Delta$ ). A, B, C and D correspond to the scattering mechanisms of Rayleigh, Brillouin, Dember and Fresnel, respectively. The scattering of the fundamental and second harmonic is calculated using Equation (2) (ref-type="disp-formula"). The cavity's response is modelled using the response of the air ( $h = 0$ ) reported by Shastri et al. [35] (see the text for more details).
